

Dr. Chrysandra G. Spiceland

After completing my doctorate in Educational Leadership at the University of Georgia in 1988, I became the Academic Dean in the high school at Greater Atlanta Christian School. Prior to working at GACS, I taught English in public schools in Kentucky and Illinois.

For the past ten years, I have also taught one English class each fall and spring semester at the college level. Teaching a college class keeps me apprised of current college expectations while I assist GACS high school teachers in preparing our college preparatory curriculum.

I have been a member of the Professional Association of Georgia Educators for the past 23 years. I also maintain membership in the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development.

One of the best parts of my job is directing the European Studies Class. I have the delightful privilege of taking students to Europe each year. We always travel during spring break and often travel at other times as well. During spring break March 28-April 6, 2007, we are traveling to London, Paris, and Rome. Additionally, after school is out, we will travel to Madrid, Toledo, and Barcelona on May 30-June 7, 2007. Check out my web site to see how you can be a part of these life changing experiences.

My husband Jerry and I had another life changing experience this past summer when we spent two weeks in Honduras serving on a mission team from Campus church of Christ. I will be forever changed by this experience, and I look forward to serving on future mission teams.
